

Your Journey as a Family Physician

Congratulations on becoming a Family Medicine Resident!

Welcome to the College of Family Physicians of Canada (CFPC)! As one of our newest colleagues we are pleased to provide you with complimentary first-year membership. You are a key part of our professional home that is more than 30,000 members strong. Together, we define the specialty of family medicine and influence the direction of family practice in this country and in your province.

Following your residency training, you will be eligible to sit the CFPC's Certification Examination in Family Medicine (see www.cfpc.ca/FMexam for further details). Successful candidates may use the designation CCFP (Certification in the College of Family Physicians). You will be responsible to maintain your certification through ongoing participation in the Maintenance of Proficiency program (MAINPRO®). Exciting changes are happening to the Mainpro program to ensure that it accommodates the evolving learning needs of family physicians. Learn more at www.cfpc.ca/MAINPRO/.

Your program director will provide us with your pertinent information so that we can register you as a member of the CFPC. Once registered, you will receive your CFPC membership package, which will provide you with details about the benefits of membership.

Resident members play an important role in our College, contributing meaningfully to our important work in family medicine. We look forward to your participation!

Sincerely,

Kathy Lawrence, MD, CCFP, FCFP
President

Welcome to the College's Section of Residents!

Congratulations on reaching this pivotal point in your medical career. Through your complimentary CFPC membership you automatically become a member of its Section of Residents (SOR). The CFPC is your College, and the Section of Residents is your voice within the CFPC.

The SOR Council is composed of elected R1 and R2 representatives from each family medicine program. Its mandate is to strengthen and improve family medicine training across Canada. The Council is a strong voice for all family medicine residents and has significant input into CFPC initiatives and policies with direct input to the CFPC Board of Directors and College committees.

Currently, the SOR Council is involved in advocating on several issues that affect residents across Canada: duty hours, competency-based medical education, and health human resources. The Council has also provided feedback to the CFPC around the new harmonized exam, the Section of Family Physicians with Special Interests or Focused Practices (SIFP), and the upcoming changes to Mainpro.

Learn more about the SOR on the Residents' page of the CFPC website (www.cfpc.ca/For_Residents). You can also connect with the SOR via their Facebook page and on Twitter @CFPC_SOR. The Section of Residents Council works on your behalf. I encourage you to consider becoming the representative for your family medicine program.

The SOR Council looks forward to representing you at the CFPC and always welcomes your comments, feedback, and questions.

Sincerely,

Steve Hawrylyshyn, MD
Chair, Section of Residents
